

This blend of selected, highly productive annual species will give a green manure crop that produces maximum herbage biomass production. This adaptable and highly productive blend is incorporated into the soil prior to budburst in late winter to early spring and will improve soil physical properties, improve soil nutrient status, improve management conditions and reduce chemical input requirements.